Keith Haring was born in Reading, Pennsylvania in 1958. His father drew cartoons and perhaps that is one reason why Haring could draw so well when he was still a child. Haring was such a good artist of age 18 he was able to start studying at art school in Pennsylvania. He didn't stay there long, but moved on to an academy in New York. Haring discovered that he was talented at sculptor. One day Haring saw a black panel in the subway. That give him a idea. Haring intriguing cartoon like drawing on the black paper. Haring realized that people liked this and he starts to drawing in front of people. He starts to producing buttons with his images. In 1986 Haring opened his own Pop Shop in New York. He wanted everyone to be able to buy low cost products. Keith Haring died in 1990 at the age of 31 years of AIDS.
