B4 How are your eating habits relating to the changes in the graphic? Write a short note.

I would simply get people to inject less into the fruit and vegetables because it doesn't do any good and also not the plants. Plants could stop photosynthesis because of that, because the stuff they spray prevents it. Also, too much is thrown away in the open, because it is believed that the soil that the plants have been in is not simply thrown away in a dustbin, but in the open, the animals die in the water, the plants die in the water, and global warming changes when it heats that up and that arrives in the water and makes the frozen water thaw. One should leave it to nature, how the plants, animals and generally the world develops without help.
