

B5 - Small or large?

Industrial farming is a form of farming in which everything possible is replaced by machines. The idea is to produce as much as possible at a low price.

In my opinion, it is another idea that will ensure that the future generation will have to pay for it. It was the same with coal-fired power stations, which provided a cheap and fast energy supply at the time, but now we are bearing the damage and have to live with climate change.

So much is already being produced by machines, in my opinion such things should be produced traditionally, that is what farming is all about for me.
