

Growing up

Summarize:

The Text „Being a teenager is the worst time of your life and here's why“ by Duncan Lindsey is about growing up and how it is as a teenager.

That the time as a teenager can be pretty hard.

There are many factors, that make the time hard.

The Text shows a few "overtopics" and these are the main reasons.

For example: Hormones and puberty, everything is like up and down in your body, there are emotions, that you never had and don't know, why you are that way.; Bullying, the time in school can be also hard.; Parents, maybe they just don't understand you; „Love“, can be confusing, too; Identity, you are in that phase where you are finding your person.

To sum it up in this phase of life, there's everything changing physically and emotionally.

Comment:

In the phase of teenage life can be pretty hard, everything is changing physically and emotionally.

That's the topic of the article by Duncan Lindsey „Being a teenager is the worst time of your life and here's why“.

In general I agree with the article, because I'm a teenager and most of the arguments apply to me and I also think to my friends.

But those are also good things and experiences, that shapes your life.

The "overtopics": Hormones and puberty, Relationships, love and identity are in my opinion Arguments, why the phase of a teenager can be hard.

For example Hormones and puberty, it is pretty confusing, when you have up and downs and you just don't know, why you are feeling a sudden way.

Also Parents can be confusing.

If you are just not on the same wavelength or maybe your parents are divorced and that's pretty hard.

Or identity, to find yourself and that person, who you wanna be is sometimes the worst things ever.

But other than that, the time as a teenager can be so beautiful.

To find the first love and get feelings for a person is also a good feeling and not just a bad.

And when you are a teenager, you're "free". You still don't care about work, children and household. You have many opportunities to gain experience, to travel etc.

Another thing is, that every teenager is growing up in another way and for me parents are playing a big roll.

So to sum it up the article has many right things, but Duncan is just telling the bad things and not good things.

Twists:

„We get told to grow up one minute and act like adults then when we do were told to act our age and enjoy being young“.

→ I like the comment, cause it's just a fact that we get told both sides. I think every teenager now know the feeling, like in school or your parents act to you like that.

- The teenage life is confusing and beautiful, you have to make the best out of it and enjoy to be "free".
