

The American Dream

The American dream means Independence. Freedom is a important point. Everybody should have the chance to be free and decide to make the best out of one's life. The same chance everybody should have to follow their dreams.

The quote for the American dream is from the Declaration of Independence and is named „Life, liberty and the pursuit of hapiness“. The quote is often used to describe the American dream.

All in all the American dream is too liberty, that is the reason for the statue of liberty. Furthermore it's the chance for everyone to decide for yourselves. For example the chance that every have the opportunity to make the best out of one's life. The meaning of the American dream has changed over time but that's some basic, but important elements of the American dream.
